Bank of England Assets 01/03/07 to 02/04/09

- Weekly amounts outstanding of Central Bank other assets total (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted RPWB74A
- Central Bank bonds and other securities acquired via market transactions (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted
- □ Weekly amounts outstanding of Central Bank sterling w ays and means advances to HM government (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted
- Central Bank sterling longer-term reverse repos with Bank of England counterparties (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted
- Central Bank sterling short-term market operations w ith Bank of England counterparties (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted
- Weekly amounts outstanding of Central Bank sterling standing facility assets (in sterling millions) not seasonally adjusted

Source: Bank of England.

©Copyright 2009 Cumberland Advisors, Inc. Further distribution prohibited without prior permission.

Explanation

The Bank of England and European System of Central Banks have significantly expanded their balance sheets in response to the financial crisis. To provide a more complete picture of how these institutions have responded by comparison with the Federal Reserve, we have added two charts. One is for the ECB and the other is for the Bank of England.

Neither bank publishes data exactly like the Federal Reserve's "Factors Affecting Reserves" data. Nevertheless, by examining changes in the asset composition of each institution, it is possible to draw meaningful comparisons.

The legends of each chart show the asset categories as they are labeled by each of the central banks in their weekly data releases.

CUMBERLAND

ADVISORS